To whom it may concern,

Subject: European RoHS Directive 2011/65/EU

11 October 2021

The European Directive 2011/65/EU (as amended by Directive (EU) 2015/863) on the restriction of the use of certain hazardous substances in electrical and electronic equipment, prohibits the use of specific substances as listed in Annex II of the Directive.

NSK can confirm that all the product it supplies, that can reasonably be expected to be installed into equipment falling within the scope of the above directive and that has been manufactured either on or after the date of this declaration, does not contain any of these restricted substances above the permitted thresholds or outside the permitted exemptions as detailed in Annex II and Annex III of the Directive.

If you have any further questions regarding these matters, or require a declaration specifically for the NSK parts supplied to your company, please do not hesitate to contact NSK.

Yours Faithfully
